INTRODUCTION

The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) was created by the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974 to provide the Congress with budget-related information and with analyses of alternative fiscal, budgetary, and programmatic policies. CBO began its operation in February 1975 and published its first study in June of that year. All papers published by CBO are available to the general public as well as to the Members of Congress and their staffs.

Copies of CBO publications can be obtained free of charge from CBO's Office of Intergovernmental Relations, unless noted otherwise. To request publications, telephone 202-226-2809 or write to:

This booklet presents CBO's studies in two ways. First, the papers are listed chronologically by date of publication, beginning with the most recent report. Second, the papers are categorized into 21 subject areas. The lists include all CBO papers published through September 1988. Subsequent reports will be listed on a supplement sheet, also available from CBO's Publications Office.
